Dear Dr. Sproul,

Thank you for your prompt response to my letter and for understanding what prompted my writing.

You have raised other interesting and important points in your letter. I am sure we could carry on a continuing and profitable correspondence on these and perhaps other issues, but I am hesitant to start down that road. For one thing my secretarial help is zero (one of the fringe benefits of retirement!), so I find myself keeping correspondence to a minimum. But more importantly, correspondence has its limitations in clarifying matters.

I sincerely wish we could talk face to face, and perhaps our Lord will work that out before too much time passes. If you come to Dallas, please let me know so that I can take you to lunch or dinner and discuss some of these matters. Or if you have a layover of sufficient time at the airport let me know, and I'll drive out and visit there.

Please do not think I am trying to put you off or avoid discussion. That is certainly not the case. It's probably just old age that motivates me to keep life as simple as possible!

Again, thank you for writing and for alerting Mr. Barolet to my concerns.

Sincerely,

Charles C. Ryrie
